Overview of international commercial arbitration in the 21st century: getting the best out of the process

The decision to proceed with international arbitration encompasses a number of significant advantages. The optimal way of getting the best out of the process begins with a well-crafted arbitration agreement. This session will explore some pitfalls associated with drafting such agreements. It will also address a number of procedural features of international arbitration, and highlight the relevance of a transnational approach to the process, including the selection of arbitrators and counsel, the choice of procedural and evidentiary rules, and the conduct of the arbitral proceedings.

The purpose of this session is to examine the role of the judiciary at each stage of the arbitral process, with a view to emphasising how the judiciary can assist. This will include a review of how state courts can make international arbitration work, inter alia, by upholding arbitration agreements, by issuing relief in aid of arbitration and ultimately, by recognising and enforcing arbitral awards made in conformity with the New York Convention.

International Bar Association

the global voice of the legal profession

The International Bar Association (IBA), established in 1947, is the world's leading organisation of international legal practitioners, bar associations and law societies. The IBA influences the development of international law reform and shapes the future of the legal profession throughout the world. It has a membership of over 35,000 individual lawyers and more than 195 bar associations and law societies spanning all continents. It has considerable expertise in providing assistance to the global legal community as well as being a source of distinguished legal commentators for international news outlets.

Grouped into two divisions – the Legal Practice Division and the Public and Professional Interest Division – the IBA covers all practice areas and professional interests, providing members with access to leading experts and up-to-date information. Through the various committees of the divisions, the IBA enables an interchange of information and views among its members as to laws, practices and professional responsibilities relating to the practice of business law around the globe. Additionally, the IBA's high-quality publications and world-class conferences provide unrivalled professional development and network-building opportunities for international legal practitioners and professional associates.

IBA Arbitration Committee

The Arbitration Committee focuses on laws, practice and procedures relating to the arbitration of transnational disputes. Through its publications and conferences, the committee seeks to share information about international arbitration and promote its use and improve its effectiveness.

The committee has four subcommittees, namely Recognition and Enforcement of Arbitral Awards, Investment Treaty Arbitration, Conflicts of Interest, and Rules of Evidence. The committee also has established two task forces: the Task Force on Attorney Ethics in Arbitration; and the Task Force on Arbitration Agreements.

IBA Asia Pacific Regional Forum

In addition to offering an unrivalled opportunity to establish contact among lawyers within and outside the region, and with acknowledged experts on different areas of law, specialist forum activities provide an unparalleled opportunity to keep abreast of legal business developments in the region. Members also benefit from excellent working relations with national bars, the Inter-Pacific Bar Association and LAWASIA.

About the ICC

The International Court of Arbitration of the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) is the world's leading institution for resolving cross-border business disputes. Its function is to ensure the application of the ICC Rules of Arbitration. To this end, it oversees and administers ICC arbitral proceedings and scrutinises the awards of all ICC arbitral tribunals before they are issued.

Since its creation in 1923, the ICC Court has grown considerably in scope. Today it comprises of distinguished members from 90 countries with diverse backgrounds and legal cultures, making it the most widely-representative body of its kind. The Court meets weekly and is assisted by a permanent Secretariat with its seat at ICC headquarters in Paris, France, and a recently opened branch in Hong Kong. With a staff of over 70, including some 40 lawyers of 20 different nationalities, the Secretariat manages the many hundreds of ongoing cases conducted by ICC arbitral tribunals throughout the world. Altogether over 16,000 cases have been handled by the ICC Court during its history.

The ICC Court has pioneered international commercial arbitration as we know it today. During more than eight decades it has been a moving force in securing the worldwide acceptance of arbitration as the most effective way of resolving international commercial disputes. It played a key role in the adoption of the 1958 United Nations Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards, now in force in over 140 countries.

In addition to arbitration (www.iccarbitration.org), ICC provides a number of other services to help parties settle their differences.

ICC ADR is inspired by an amicable approach and covers a variety of techniques including mediation, neutral evaluation, mini-trial, or a combination of such techniques. www.iccadr.org.

The ICC Dispute Board Rules provide a framework for establishing and operating Dispute Boards to deal with disputes as and when they arise during the life of mid-term and long-term contracts. Three types of Dispute Board are available under the ICC Dispute Board Rules. Each offers a different approach to dispute resolution. www.iccdisputeboards.org.

When parties are faced with a question requiring technical, legal, financial or other expertise, the ICC International Centre for Expertise is available to propose and appoint experts and administer expertise proceedings. It also offers a specialised service known as DOCDEX for the resolution of disputes relating to documentary credits, collections and demand guarantees.
